FEDERAL COURT DENIES DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE MOTION TO DISMISS LAWSUIT BY ATF AGENT JAY DOBYNS

Ruling was Made on February 1, 2010 and Permits Lawsuit to Proceed to Discovery

PHOENIX, Arizona (February 16, 2010) –Phoenix, Arizona-based Baird Williams & Greer (www.bwglaw.net) announced today that on February 1, 2010, United States Court of Federal Claims Judge Francis Allegra denied a Department of Justice motion to dismiss the lawsuit of Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives (ATF) agent Jay Dobyns against his employer, ATF. The ruling permits the lawsuit to proceed to discovery, it can be found online at <http://www.uscfc.uscourts.gov/sites/default/files/ALLEGRA.DOBYNS020110.pdf>.

Dobyns is a 23 year veteran of ATF who infiltrated the Hells Angels motorcycle club as an undercover agent, resulting in sixteen federal indictments. His home was subsequently destroyed by arson after the investigation and prosecutions concluded.

Dobyns' lawsuit alleges breach of a settlement agreement by ATF, including an alleged failure to protect Dobyns and his family from threats of violence. The Department of Justice sought dismissal of the lawsuit based on jurisdiction and whether the lawsuit stated a claim capable of being tried by the court.

Baird Williams & Greer, LLP (www.bwglaw.net), a Phoenix commercial litigation and transactions law firm, represents Dobyns in the United States Court of Federal Claims action. James B. Reed, a partner at the firm, briefed and argued the opposition to the Justice Department's motion in Washington DC, on September 9, 2009.

Dobyns' infiltration of the Hells Angels is chronicled in several books, including Dobyns' New York Times Nonfiction Top Ten Best Seller "No Angel."
